THE NOISE

CHILD PROTECTION INFORMATION

Dealing with an Allegation

The most important consideration for workers must be to safeguard and promote the welfare of the children and young people with whom they come into contact. Any allegation of abuse must be taken seriously and The Noise Project Leader has a duty to report it to the relevant statutory agencies, in consultation with the Child Protection Co-ordinator (Ian Powell).

Abuse falls into four categories, which can be defined as follows:

Physical Injury: Any injury to a child or young person caused by a family member or other person with responsibility for their care.

Neglect: A failure to meet a child or young person's basic needs for food, warmth, protection and care.

Emotional Abuse: The persistent, severe emotional ill-treatment or rejection that severely affects the emotional and behavioural development of a child or young person.

Sexual Abuse: The use of a child or young person to meet an adult's sexual needs.

If a child or young person begins to tell a worker about abuse it is vital that you do the following:

- Never promise to keep it a secret and not tell anyone.
- Listen carefully but do not ask questions.
- Reassure the child or young person that they have done the right thing by telling someone.

- Pass the information immediately to your Team Leader.

- Write up what has been told as soon as possible using the child or young person's own words to describe the abuse.

The Noise has two separate procedures for dealing with allegations of abuse according to whether:

- 1) The alleged abuse happened / is still possibly happening but NOT on site.
- 2) The allegation of misconduct happened on site.

In both cases report the situation to your team leader. They will then report to The Noise Project Leaders. From there the Child Protection Co-ordinator will be involved and The Noise will take up the matter from there. It is important to remember that it is not the responsibility of The Noise to investigate the truth of any allegation. This is the responsibility of the Police, Social Services and the NSPCC.

Please note, what has been disclosed is very confidential and should only be shared with others on a strictly need-to-know basis. The first person to be told of the abuse may be asked to provide a statement for the police.

After telling of abuse, a child or young person can be distressed, frightened and worried about what will happen next. They should be reassured that they have done the right thing and not left on their own.

The best interest of the child or young person and the need for the abuse to stop comes before the interests of the organisation or the abuser.
